THE WASHTENAW COUNTY ROOTS OF THE DEAKE/DAKE FAMILY

Research by Judge Edward Dunham Deake, Ypsilanti, Michigan

In Family History Capers, Vol. 15, No. 1 (Summer 1991), there appeared an account of the "First Freewill Baptist Society of Salem and Lyon, Washtenaw County, Michigan." The organizers included Edward Deake and Levi Deake. Elected as trustees were Edward Deake and Nathaniel Martin. This Society was organized in 1856 (about 135 years ago).

My namesake, Edward Deake, was a great-uncle on my father's side. Edward was an older brother of Levi Deake, my paternal grandfather. Nathaniel Martin was one of my great-grandfathers, the father-in-law of Levi Deake.

In the family records there is a notebook of the minutes of the annual meetings of the First Freewill Baptist Society of Salem and Lyon from 1856 to 1872.[1] This notebook, in script writing, with the usual misspellings, gives us some insight on the early church. These minutes deal with ordinary matters - repairs, painting the meeting house, wood for the stove, etc. The Society was financed by subscriptions, which in 1856 amounted to $85.00. In 1857 N. Martin sold 6 cords of wood at $1.00 per cord to the Society.

Each annual meeting, opened with a prayer, dealt with the usual election of trustees and a clerk. Augustus Dake is mentioned in the minutes of 1862. He was the oldest son of Levi Deake. David Dake, another son of Levi, was mentioned on page 13 of the minutes. David Dake lived in a farm house on the site of the present Salem Township Hall. I remember visiting him in my early childhood.

In 1869, $10.00 was raised by pledges for the Sexton. A sexton was a maintenance man in a church, responsible for the care and upkeep of the church property and sometimes for bell-ringing or supervising burials in the churchyard.

There is a note "house let to Levi Deake." Apparently the Society owned a meeting house which was "let" (leased) to different people each year. In 1867, the church house was let to Myron Deake for $9.75. Myron was the oldest son of Levi Deake by his second marriage. In 1871, the minutes show an entry for M.M. Dake, the same person.

The early church had deficits. So nothing is really new. In 1871 pledges made for the deficit were Levi Deake, $1.25, E. Deake, $1.75, N. Martin, $1.00.

A reference is made in 1856 to "seven shillings per cord." A shilling was a small unit of currency which originated in England.

Edward Deake, my great-uncle, was the first of the family to settle in Washtenaw County. He settled in Salem Township after 1831. According to information obtained from the Lyon Township Library (Oakland County), Washtenaw County was included in the lands designated for the veterans of the War of 1812. The first known veteran of this war to settle in Salem Township was James Sober. He came to Salem in 1831 and lived to a very old age. Then came Edward Drake, John Van Sickle, Robert Shankland, Dr. E.W. Cook and Peter C. Love.[2] Chapman's History of Washtenaw County, seems to corroborate this theory.

> James Sober, now 88 years of age was the first veteran of the War of 1812 who ever settled in Salem. He was followed soon by Edward Dake, who has since passed away.[3]

There is some uncertainty whether Edward Deake/Dake ever participated in the War of 1812. Your writer can find nothing in the National Archives about him, but the Archives are incomplete due to the sacking of Washington D.C. by the British.

Family records list Edward Dake as born 23 April 1796, in Penfield, New York (Monroe County, New York). He married Charity Van Wormer, and had one son Luke Dake.[4] In 1812 this Edward Dake would have been sixteen years old, and he could have seen some service. The Bible records show that Edward Dake died 1 November 1875 in Lyon Township, Oakland County, Michigan. He apparently had a second wife, Betsy, and he is buried in the South Lyon Cemetery. His grave marker has the dates, 1797-1875.

Levi Deake's original farm was in Washtenaw County, and then he moved north into Oakland County.[5] This farm was on the corner of 8 Mile and Currie Roads. The original farm house is still on the north-east corner.

My grandfather Levi Deake, son of Augustus and Eunice Hamilton Deake, was born at Penfield, Monroe County, New York, on 9 February 1812. He resided there until 1832 when he moved with his father to Otto, Cattaraugus County, New York. On 26 June 1834 he married Eunice Wilson. Children by the first marriage included Augustus Dake and David Dake. Another son was Daniel Dake, who was a Civil War Veteran. A few years after his marriage, in 1841, Levi moved to Salem Township in Washtenaw County, Michigan. There his wife died 10 June 1850 during childbirth. One 25 December 1850 he married Joanna Martin, the daughter of Nathaniel and Almeda Martin. At that time Levi was a widower, left with a farm to run and six children to raise. The Martin farm was south of the Deake farm, in Section 11.

Levi Deake's second marriage was successful. There were nine children: Martin Myron, Eva Georganna, Ada Rosanna, Ettie Viola, Abbie Sophia, Cora Armenia, Mary Eugenie, Clayton Edward, and Oliver Levi (my father).

Shortly after his marriage, Levi moved to a farm situated upon the base line in Oakland County, Lyon Township. According to family records, "he endured all the hardships attending the clearing and subjugating of land in its native state. He early united with the Freewill Baptist Church and was during his life a loyal supporter and officer of that church. He died February 14, 1890, honored and esteemed by all who knew him."

Lastly, Nathaniel Martin was my great-grandfather. Nathaniel was my "Michigan Pioneer Ancestor" and his life is reported in Family History Capers, Vol. 12, No. 3 (Winter 1989).

Levi Deake and Nathaniel Martin are buried in the Thayer Cemetery, a pioneer cemetery located at 6 Mile and Napier Roads in Wayne County. My cousin, Laura Deake Dykman of Packard Road, Ann Arbor, and myself are the only living grandchildren of Levi Deake. Needless to say, I am very proud of my Michigan heritage, and I am still trying to assemble more information about these Michigan pioneers.

The genealogical search has been complicated by the various misspellings of the surname: Deak, Deake, Dake, van Dake, Drake. The roots of the family go back to George Deake, about 1735, of Westerly, Rhode Island. The paternal stock was English. One theory, however, states the family originally came from Hungary. There are no known records indicating where George Deake was born. The second generation of the Deake family in America changed the spelling to Dake, and that is where the confusion arises. My branch of the family retained the spelling of Deake.

DANIEL LE BARON DAVIS, MICHIGAN PIONEER

Research by Ralph Haskin, Anchorville, Michigan

Naomi Le Baron Davis brought her family to Ypsilanti, Michigan, sometime around 1830. Her daughter, Mrs. Chester Perry, and several of her sons, had come here earlier. Naomi's husband, Brigadier General Daniel Davis, New York Militia, had been killed in the War of 1812 at the Battle of Fort Erie on the 17th of September, 1814. His son, my great-great-grandfather, Daniel Le Baron Davis, was born less than one month earlier on the twenty-fifth of August, the youngest of six children: Cynthia born 1800, Alfred born 21 June 1801, Asher born 15 January 1803, David born 13 February 1807, Leveritt, and Daniel Le Baron.

Brigadier General Davis was born on the 23rd of February, 1776, in Killingsworth, Connecticut, the second son of James Davis, Sr., born 1748, and Hannah Seward. He was married at Ganson's settlement, now LeRoy, New York, in 1800 and is buried in LeRoy, New York. Naomi Le Baron, wife of Brigadier General Davis, was born in 1781 and died in 1862. She is buried in Highland Cemetery, Ypsilanti, Michigan, next to her daughter and son-in-law, Cynthia and Chester Perry. In March of the year 1817, at Batavia, New York, an elegant sword was presented to Alfred Davis, the eldest male heir of Brigadier Davis, by Governor Tompkins, with an address of gratitude by Judge Stevens. The youth, in a moving reply, pledged his services should further danger "assail the liberty and independence of our country."

Daniel Le Baron Davis married Harriet Graves and resided in York Township, Washtenaw County. Michigan, where they raised two children: Martha, who married George Bliss of Lansing, and George who married Almira Ford on the 4th of July, 1865, in Ann Arbor. Daniel died at his son's home in Lansing in 1888 and is buried with his wife at the Maple Grove Cemetery in Mason, Michigan.

BOOK REVIEW

By Don Callard, Ann Arbor, Michigan

Ransom, Jeanne Bailey. The Bailey Family: history and genealogy of descendants of Richard Bailey of Rowley, Massachusetts, who came to Michigan by way of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York, 1635-1990, with allied families. Ann Arbor: Designed and produced by After Thought, 1991.

The information compiled in this work is recognizable to genealogists as being what normally, through persistent excavation, is gathered over the years on a family, but those interested in Michigan Baileys will appreciate that an unusual degree of effort and care has gone into the presentation. The New England Historical and Genealogical Register format for enumeration and style is used, and the book is attractively interlarded with maps, portraits, document facsimiles and other supporting illustrations.

The subtitle must be fully considered, as it reveals the selective coverage of this genealogy: those lines of Richard Bailey's descent that ended up in Michigan. Although all known children are listed in each generational level, only those connected to the Michigan lines are carried down to the next generation. This is more explicitly conveyed in a second table of contents called "Bailey Genealogy" (pp. xxiii-xxiv).

As is the norm for published family histories, the earlier generations of this one rely heavily on secondary sources, while nineteenth and twentieth century lines receive more primary and contemporary documentation. Twelve generations appear in twelve chapters, each ending with a list of sources. Because these sources are not tied to specific genealogical elements (birth, marriage, death, relationships, etc.), it is impossible for a reader unfamiliar with the family to judge how reliable the dates and names are, and whether the deductions about relationships are correct. With such a common name as Bailey - in most of the communities covered here, unrelated Baileys would have dwelled contemporaneously - problems of identity must have arisen, though such problems are never addressed. The rich and readable narrative is descriptive rather than evaluative. It does not discuss problems, variant interpretations of methodology, though admittedly a work destined primarily for family members might prove less desirable for that. Presumably researchers interested in the family can communicate with the author to clarify matters of identity and to pinpoint sources.

Baileys of the lines traced here came to Michigan early in the nineteenth century and to Washtenaw County (Northfield Township) in 1866. Future inquirers after Bailey information in the county should be referred to this volume, a copy of which has been given to the Bentley Library. Four name indexes and a place index are included, the latter showing concentrations of Baileys in Ann Arbor, Lansing/East Lansing, Midland, Northfield Township and Salem Township.

Few of us, even those very few who have actually collected this much information on a family, have managed to organize and publish the material as clearly and handsomely as Jeanne Ransom has done. It is a model of clean layout, thorough proofreading and consistent readability, and should be perused not only by Baileys but by anyone hoping to publish.

DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS IN COURTS OF WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN, 1833-1851

Contributed by Nancy H. Krohn

Circuit Court in Chancery, 1847-1855, Washtenaw County, Michigan

The abstracts below are those cases initiated up to and including 1851 and are found in a journal printed on the outside "Chancery Court Journal, Calhoun County." Inside is written "State of Michigan, Washtenaw County; 18 March 1847, Circuit Court in Chancery, Hon. George Miles, associate Judge of the Supreme Court." The records begin on page 6 with the first entry 28 August 1847, Hon. Charles W. Whipple, Circuit Judge. Page 7 is the first divorce entry, with court held by Hon. George Miles, Circuit Judge. The last entry, page 450, is dated 7 September 1855, signed Hon. David Johnson, Circuit Judge.

Most of these cases are indexed in Chancery Calendar 3, and some are indexed in Circuit Court Calendar C.
